Dear Ms Halperin

Established in 2010, we produce a range of sweet and savoury preserves (chutney), cordials (syrops), and we have a micro distillery producing gin, schnapps and liqueurs. These products are all based on the innovative use of local fruit and vegetables. We also bottle local honey, which I know is a livestock product, but this is undertaken in a separate room within our facility.

We are based in Saschiz, a UNESCO World Heritage Site, 20km south of Sighișoara.

Following my discussions with Tudor Seicarescu about selling our products, he suggested that I introduce our company to you in order to explore the possibilities of export to Israel.

We produce elderflower cordial, and this has involved 1,500 people wild harvesting the flowers.

We introduced savoury preserves to Romania and now sell more than our jams.

We developed the recipes for our elderflower gin, elderflower schnapps and rhubarb liqueur and all have been recognised with stars by the International Taste Institute in Brussels

We export honey to Fortnum & Mason in London under the brand of King Charles III.

We are certified to a global standard for food safety, the first SME to achieve this in Romania. This standard includes rigorous pest control.

We were the first micro enterprise to obtain a distilling licence in our county, if not the country.

We will be happy for you to visit us in Saschiz and of course to explore Kosher certification. Please let us know of your interest and availability to meet.

Yours sincerely

Jim Turnbull
